

Subject: I Thought You Should Know About This

Dear [Name],

I recently learned about the Reunion Assistance Fund and immediately thought of you.

The organization was created to help military reunions overcome financial barriers by providing grants that help reunions start, survive, and thrive.

Military reunions do far more than bring Veterans together. They renew lifelong friendships, strengthen support networks, and reconnect Veterans with the people who understand their military journey better than anyone else.

If you know someone involved in planning a military reunion—or if your own reunion could benefit—I encourage you to take a look.

Although the grant application process is not yet open, you can visit the website today to learn more and request notification when applications become available.

I thought you'd want to know this resource exists.

Sincerely,
