

Subject: Brother...I Thought of You

Hey [Name],

I wanted to share something that I think is worth knowing about.

A new nonprofit called the Reunion Assistance Fund was created to help Veterans reconnect by providing financial assistance for military reunions.

We both know that reunions are about a lot more than getting together for a weekend. They're about seeing people who understand where we've been without having to explain a thing.

If you've ever thought about starting a reunion—or if your reunion has struggled because of money—I think it's worth taking a look.

Although the grant application process is not yet open, you can visit the website today to learn more and request notification when applications become available.

Even if it doesn't apply to you, you might know another Veteran who could benefit.

Take a few minutes and check it out.

www.reunionassistancefund.org

Hope you're doing well.